Thoughts behind the song

The Advent!

What did Jesus say about His return?

Every generation has wondered how close we are to the return of Christ – but our generation isn't just wondering; we're witnessing the very signs the disciples once asked about. The world is trembling under the weight of deception, lawlessness, and spiritual delusion. Nations rage, nature groans, and humanity, for all its technology, stands more confused, unstable, and spiritually blind than ever.

This song steps into that prophetic landscape and gives voice to Christ's own warnings in Matthew 24. It retells His message with poetic clarity – not softening His words, not twisting them into modern comfort, but letting the Scriptures speak plainly about the signs that precede His appearing. It calls the listener to wake up, to watch, and to hold fast. The signs He gave are not symbolic riddles – they are real, measurable, unfolding right now.

In the end, this isn't just a song about the end of the world. It's a call to readiness. A call to sober vigilance. A reminder that His coming will be literal, visible, and unmistakable – and only those who cling to Him through the shaking will endure to the end.

Lyrics

[Verse 1]

What shall be the sign, they cried,
Of the day You'll split the sky?
When the heavens quake and nations fall,
Will Your glory answer all?

[Verse 2]

“Take heed, let no man deceive,
For many will claim, ‘In Me, believe.’
Wars will thunder, the earth will groan,
Yet the hour is still unknown.”

[Chorus]

Oh, the world will groan, the earth will sigh,
As stars fall dark from the trembling sky.
But lift your eyes, for hope will gleam,
The Son of Man fulfills the dream.

[Verse 3]

Famines rise and plagues will spread,
False prophets shout where fear is fed.
Iniquity’s flood will chill the flame,
And love may falter, bound by shame.

[Verse 4]

The sun will fade, the moon turn red,
The stars will fall, their light all shed.
But angels come on trumpets' sound,
To lift the chosen from the ground.

The Advent!

[Hook]

Oh, His mercy reigns, a shining sea,
A promise kept for you and me.
Through the darkest night, His love remains,
And all creation sings His name.

[Chorus]

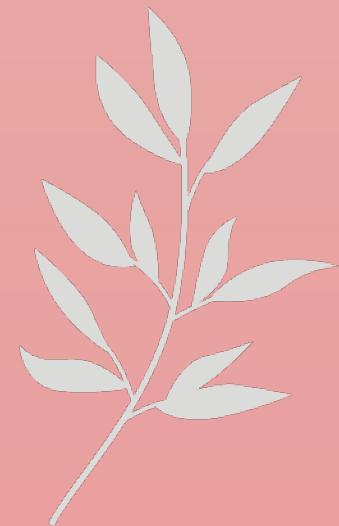

Oh, the world will groan, the earth will sigh,
As stars fall dark from the trembling sky.
But lift your eyes, for hope will gleam,
The Son of Man fulfills the dream.

[Verse 5]

With power and glory, clouds He'll ride,
As heaven opens far and wide.
The nations mourn, the end begun,
When mercy reigns through God's own Son.

[Outro]

Oh, the King will come, the Savior true,
To make the earth and sky brand new.
For those who've waited, endured the fight,
Will dwell in His eternal light.

Reflection

This song walks directly through Christ's prophetic outline of the last days. It is not symbolic poetry – it is a warning rooted in Scripture. Every verse points us back to what Jesus Himself said would mark the closing moments of history: deception, false revival, spiritualism, disasters, persecution, the chilling of love, and global unrest. Yet woven through it all is hope – not the world's shallow optimism, but the sure promise of His soon return.

The song urges the listener to recognise the times, to stand firm in the faith of Jesus, and to refuse the counterfeit miracles that will sweep the world. The shaking is here. The final movements will be rapid ones. But those who cling to Christ, obey His Word, and trust His promises will find peace even as the earth trembles.

Final Encouragement

Hold fast. Stay watchful. Do not be swept away by the noise and deception of this age.

The same Jesus who warned us also promised us His strength, His presence, and His victory. As you study His Word, may your heart be anchored in truth, your faith strengthened, and your hope sharpened. The end is not something to fear – not for those hidden in Christ. Let this song stir you to readiness. Let the Scriptures guide your steps. And let your eyes remain fixed on the skies, for the King is soon to appear in glory.
